

Christine Mazzarisi, B.A., M.A.
Executive Director, Human Resources and Relations

Christine Mazzarisi is the Executive Director and Head of Human Resources and Relations at Advyzom. Christine provides support for human resource processes, including recruitment, new hire orientations, employee relations, benefit administration, as well as, development of job descriptions and Advyzom's employee manual. Christine creates strategies to encourage and support Advyzom's strong team culture.

Christine has over 25 years of experience in Fortune 500 companies with 18 years in the pharmaceutical industry. Prior to joining Advyzom, Christine was a Human Resource Director for IMSHealth and provided HR strategy in resource planning, employee relations, executive coaching, performance development and training. She received the STAR Award from IMSHealth for developing and implementing a rotational training program across the organization for decreasing new hires' learning curves and increasing productivity. As the owner of Hire Me With Chris, Christine served as a consultant to adults and students to create strong resumes and develop their interviewing and networking skills to obtain employment. In addition, Christine provided career counseling, lectures and workshops at Fairleigh Dickinson University, Teaneck, NJ. Early in her career, Christine worked for Exxon Research and Engineering in the Law Department while obtaining her college degree.

Christine earned her Bachelor of Arts (with Honors) in Psychology and Masters of Organizational Development (Magna Cum Laude) from Fairleigh Dickinson University, Madison, New Jersey. As a graduate assistant, she trained students in Experimental Statistics and Behavioral Psychology. She has taken courses in Strategic Planning in Human Resources at the University of Michigan, Kepnoe Tregoe Course in Project Management, Coaching and Counselling with The Richardson Company, Positive Power and Influence and Situational Leadership.